COUNCIL POLICY

CURRENT

SUBJECT: OPEN HOUSING
POLICY NO.: 600-20
EFFECTIVE DATE: January 15, 1974

BACKGROUND:

The San Diego City Council has long been concerned with the quality of housing available to its citizens. An important part of insuring that quality housing is available is the concept of an open neighborhood wherein San Diego citizens are free to live where they choose, irrespective of race, color, creed or place of national origin. Adequate housing in a suitable environment must go hand in hand with freedom of choice.

Beginning with the Supreme Court decision of Brown vs. The Board of Education in 1954, our nation has been taking strides to eliminate discrimination wherever it may be found. The requirement of nondiscrimination has been with us for years. It is relatively obvious to the City Council, however, that in many areas a policy of nondiscrimination is not sufficient. More is needed - the active leadership of government itself. It is in the spirit of doing something rather than not doing something that the City Council adopts this policy.

The San Diego City Council has already taken the nationwide lead in affirmative marketing programs for new subdivisions. Specifically, the California Terraces' experiences have taught us that racial balance and freedom of choice for our citizens may be accomplished through the reasonable application of the concept known as "affirmative marketing." That positive experience of both the Council and the developer led The City of San Diego to adopt a policy of balanced communities in the newly developing areas of the City, Council Policy 600-19.

The Balanced Community Policy 600-19 deals primarily with the concept of balancing the economic ranges of housing available within a community. It is clear that the question of open housing and freedom of choice is a question different from the production of low to moderate income housing. Whereas the concept of mixing price ranges of housing within a community is primarily determined by the economics of a particular development, freedom of choice deals more with attitude. It is obvious to the Council that a separate policy is needed to deal with the question of freedom of choice and open neighborhood. Since the Balanced Community Policy is not always applied on a citywide basis, it is clear that a concept of freedom of choice and open neighborhood must apply on a citywide basis. What is at stake is not the economic availability of certain price ranges but rather the freedom of choice unhindered by discriminatory practices.

The City of San Diego is determined to have open neighborhoods. Although the law provides for freedom of choice, it is the City Council's belief that the City has a responsibility to affirmatively create those open neighborhoods.

PURPOSE:

The City desires to establish a community-wide approach to affirmative fair housing marketing in the City of San Diego. In order to develop realistically open neighborhoods within San Diego and a plan of action which will promote compliance with this policy, the City Council adopts the following affirmative fair housing marketing objectives.

- A. To increase substantially the number of minority families residing in neighborhoods outside areas of predominate minority concentration and establish racially balanced communities through advertising and other methods intended to inform minority and the majority family in the San Diego City area that all housing developed within the City is available to them on an equal opportunity basis.
- B. To inform the citizens of San Diego that in terms of equal housing, the City of San Diego is an open community.

In order to carry out effectively the purposes of an affirmative marketing program, the City Council adopts the following policy.

POLICY:

It shall be the policy of the City Council of The City of San Diego to require as a condition of all tentative maps the submission of an affirmative marketing program.

EXEMPTIONS FROM THE POLICY:

- 1. Tentative maps involving less than 20 dwelling units shall be excluded from the provisions of this policy.
- 2. Voluntary signatories to the HUD/BCA master affirmative marketing program need not submit additional affirmative marketing programs, since the master agreement constitutes full and complete satisfaction of the requirement of this policy.

- 1. An affirmative marketing program shall be a condition attached to all tentative maps.
- 2. An affirmative marketing program shall be submitted to the City Manager for approval prior to the recordation of the final map.
